Class History

Early in September of 1949, the thirty-six members of our class became Green Freshmen. Soon came Initiation Day--the girls were decked out in gunny sacks and men's shoes, and the boys wore girl's dresses and women's shoes; that night the class of 1950 "threw a party" for us. That year several of the girls joined Tri-Hi-Y, and the boys became members of the Hi-Y and the basketball and baseball squads. Our sponsors were Mrs. DeCoursey and Mr. Payne. The class officers were Kay Barr, president; Larry Trout, vice-president; Catherine Scheid, secretary; and Marjorie Redifer, treasurer.

No longer were we "Green Freshmen the next year"--thirty-four of us had gone on to become Sophomores. That year the school yell leaders were all members of our class--Caroline Butt, Phyllis Trout, Billie Stewart, and Jim Hayward. Bill Lee and Buddy Candler made the varsity squad in basketball; Diane Ellmore was installed as head librarian, and Caroline Butt was chosen office girl. We had members in Band, Chorus, Hi-Y, and Tri-Hi-Y. In the early part of 1951, Staunton drew Brazil in the Wabash Valley Prelim; beat them, and went clear through to take the Prelim Tournaments. Again in the Sectional we drew Brazil, and again took the tourney. Congratulations, Mr. Roeschlein! Our sponsors were Mrs. Smith and Mr. Payne, and our officers were Buddy Candler, president; Ralph Howald, vice-president; Bobbie Kay Houston, secretary; and Evelyn Kay Barr, treasurer.

The Junior year began by our electing Buddy Candler, president; Catherine Scheid, vice-president; Kay Barr, secretary; and Patty Ballinger, treasurer. Our sponsors were Mrs. Meyer and Mr. Scheid. In the fall, we took the class of 1952 to Turkey Run for the day--and two of the girls in our class got lost! The play we chose and produced was a three-act comedy, "A Case Of Springtime." In the Carnival, we produced a Colored Minstrel, as we had done the year before; Caroline Butt and Phyllis Trout were re-elected yell leaders, along with Margaret Casassa and Bette Carpenter. Our class rings were ordered early in the year, and came on November 23, during Thanksgiving holiday. We elected members of the paper staff as follows: Sue Bannon, Editor; Diane Ellmore, Business Manager; Circulation Manager, Phyllis Trout; Sports Editor, Bill Lee; Reporters, Caroline Butt and Marjorie Redifer; Typists, Catherine Scheid, Kay Barr; Joke Editor, Ralph Howald; Artist, Larry Videll.

In the fall of 1952, twenty-eight of us entered our Senior year. Our officers were Kay Barr, president; Larry Trout, vice-president; Diane Ellmore, secretary; and Marjorie Redifer, treasurer. Our sponsors were Miss Veach and Mr. Albrecht. Again Caroline Butt and Phyllis Trout were elected yell leaders, along with Bette Carpenter and Margaret Casassa of the class of 1955. In the fall, the class of 1954 took us to Turkey Run. Then came the long awaited time of having Senior pictures taken, and ordering name-cards and commencement invitations. The play chosen to be presented by the Dramatics Class was "Hobgoblin House." The Carnival, in which all of the classes helped, was a success.

Sunday, May 3, baccalaureate services will be held in the school gymnasium. Tuesday, May 5, at 8:00 o'clock, commencement services will be held. Then on Friday, May 8, the twenty-eight members will walk out the doors of Staunton High School, to return only as alumni.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of '53, being of sound mind and memory, now about to depart from this school life, do hereby make and solemnly declare this to be our last will and testament.

ARTICLE I

To our Alma Mater, we will the privilege of always having students that are as well-behaved as the Senior Class of '53 has been through its twelve years at S.H.S.

ARTICLE II

To the Faculty, we will the right of giving unannounced tests, and the privilege of exercising the strict discipline, which it established this year, upon all future Senior Classes.

ARTICLE III

I, Doris Archer, will my health book to Mary Jo Hughes.

I, Susan Phyllis Bannon, will my maidenly ability to blush to Reba Butt.

I, Evelyn Kay Barr, will my privilege of getting to sing at some of the school activities to Nancy McDonald.

I, Bonnie Baysinger, will my seat in the assembly to some deserving Junior.

I, Delores Baysinger, will my quietness to Jackie Jones.

I, Alice Ann Brown, will my seat in civics to Mary Jo Hughes.

I, Argyll Burns, will my ability to do nothing and yet make "B's" in physics to Woody Allen.

I, Caroline Butt, will my knowledge in health to Jackie Jones.

I, Donald Butt, will my ability to part my hair on both sides to Jim Ollie.

I, Wade Candler, will my ability to struggle by in civics with a "C" average to John Evans, who will surely need it.

I, Diane Ellmore, will my civics book to any deserving Junior.

I, Leland Ernest Fagg, will my position as manager of the Coke Machine to anyone who wants it.

I, Anna Mae Garrison, will my right to be the shortest one in my class to Jane Robinson.

I, James Hayward, will the 1953-'54 basketball team the right to win all games.

I, Ralph Howald, will my right to set the shop on fire to the welding class of next year.

I, Patricia Kennedy, will my right to get a poodle cut every year to Jo Ann LeMay.

I, Bill Lee, will my position as Sports Editor of the school paper to anyone who is smart enough to take it.

I, Charles Myers, will my personality to Marion Burns.

I, Marjorie Redifer, will my hair to the bald members of the faculty-----including Mr. Roeschlein.

I, James Ridgway, will my driving ability to John Lorenze.

I, Mary Helen Rogers, will my civics book to my little sister.

I, Catherine Scheid, will Joyce Lynch the right to keep pencils in her desk, even though Don Kidwell does take them all the time.

I, Madonna Siegelin, will my ability to come to school bright and early every morning to Barbara Kennedy.

I, Larry Trout, will any ability anyone thinks I have, to anyone who wants it.

I, Phyllis Trout, will the right to argue with Mr. Albrecht in commerce class to Nadine Hayes.

I, Melvin Thomas Turner, will my ability to go with one girl longer than two weeks to Don Kidwell.

I, Larry Videll, will my ability to not go to bed over the week ends so as to not waste any valuable time, to anyone with a cast iron stomach.

Signed this 5th day of May, nineteen hundred fifty-three,

Class Prophecy

One warm Sunday in May, 1963, while Kay and husband were sitting in their backyard watching their two children about the yard, they saw a light blue Cadillac convertible pull into the driveway. Kay couldn't imagine who it could be with out of the state license plates. Who should step from the car but Catherine Scheid, Kay's girl friend!

After several minutes of excited talking, Catherine invited Kay to have lunch with her and Sue, whom she was to meet later at the Silver Spoon, a very famous restaurant. Kay's husband said he would watch the children, so Kay got her hat and purse and they started off.

On the way, Kay told Catherine that a year after graduation from high school, she had married a history professor and that they had moved to California. They had come back to Brazil to visit their relatives and had decided to stay until winter.

Catherine told Kay that she had liked Washington, D. C. so well when she was there on the Senior Trip, that she had gone there to work after she had graduated from college in '57. Catherine said that she was visiting her folks now and had left her twin girls with them.

As they passed through Staunton, they noticed an ultra-modern drug store with the name "Hayward's Haven" on the front. The name sounded familiar so they decided to stop to see if they knew the owner. Surely enough, the owner was Jim Hayward, one of their old classmates. Jim told them that he and Jane Maxey had been married the year after she was graduated from high school. Jim said that he had started a drugstore soon after his graduation and that he now had drug stores in everyone of the important cities in Indiana, but that he managed the one in Staunton personally. After talking for a few minutes more, Kay and Catherine continued on their way.

They were so busy talking that they didn't notice that the light was red. Almost immediately, a policeman pulled along side the car. Who was it but Wilbur Warner, another one of their classmates! He was ready to give them a ticket and a summons to appear in court when he realized who it was. He told them that he had married Joyce Heiliger in '57. They had to move on as they had blocked traffic for two blocks back on Main Street. They said good-bye to Wilbur and drove off promising not to run any more red lights.

They had now reached the suburbs of Staunton when they passed a new housing unit. In just an instant, they discovered they had a flat tire. Catherine pulled over to the side of the road, and they went up to a cute ranch style duplex house to see whether they could use the phone to call a garage man. They were greatly surprised when another one of their old classmates, Wade Candler, answered the door. He offered to change the tire but Catherine said that she had no spare so he called the nearest garage.

While they were waiting for the repairman to arrive, Wade told them that he had married Avilla Hibbs in '58 and they had just moved into their new home. They asked him about Argyll Burns, and his reply was that Argyll had married Alta Hibbs in '58, too, and they were living in the other half of the duplex. Wade and Argyll owned a construction company and they had just finished this new housing unit. Wade told them that Argyll and his wife were vacationing in Canada.

Just then the repairman arrived, and they found it to be Charles Myers. Charles said that he had just bought the garage a few days ago, and was doing very well. While Charlie was repairing the tire, he told them he had married Nadine Hayes in '55. It took Charles only five minutes to fix the tire, and shortly they continued on their way.

They now had reached the restaurant. As they came to a stop, they both remarked what a beautiful restaurant it was. Since they were late, Sue had already selected a table and was waiting for them. While they were waiting for their order to be taken, Sue told them that she was visiting her parents. She now lives in West Virginia, where her husband owns a large ship building company. She said she had a two year old son. Her husband couldn't accompany her and their son, as his business held him in West Virginia.

As they picked up the menu to give their order, they noticed the name Melvin Thomas Turner, Proprietor. They asked the waiter whether they could speak to Melvin. He said he would call him. They hardly recognized Melvin, as he was smartly dressed and dignified. With Melvin was his pretty wife, the former Joan Gilbrech. They had been married soon after Joan graduated and they said they had owned this restaurant for nearly two years. Melvin had to leave for he had some important business to be taken care of.

Their dinners arrived and they noticed on the cream pitchers the name "Butts' Dairy." They wondered whether it could be Don Butts, another one of their classmates. A strangely familiar couple was seated at the next table. They were soon recognized as Leland Fagg and his wife, the former Doris Archer. They came over to talk to the girls. Leland told them that he owned a large farm south of Brazil. He and Doris were married in '59, and now have an eighteen months old daughter. They asked Leland and Doris why Don's name was on the cream pitchers. Doris said Don had a very large dairy farm south of Brazil and that it furnished all the milk for Clay and several other counties. She said that Don had been married for five years now to a pretty secretary he met when he was in Washington getting his revolutionary new milking machine patented.

After finishing their lunch, they decided to go to a movie. They got into quite a discussion, and Catherine, who wasn't watching where she was going, backed into a cream colored DeSoto, denting the front fender. She got out of the car to see what damage had been done. The occupant of the other car happened to be Larry Trout. They were all soon busily talking about old times. Larry introduced them to his wife, the glamorous movie actress June Russell, whom Larry met when he became chief producer of Paramount Studios. He told them they had four children. They asked him about Phyllis Trout, and his answer was that she had married Jim Brown two years after graduation and that they were now living on South 59. During the discussion over old times, the bent fender was completely forgotten. Time was slipping away, so they told Larry and his wife good-bye and decided they had time to visit Phyllis before the movie began.

Phyllis lived in an adorable Cape Cod home. She was very much surprised to see them. She invited them in, and they were happy to see another of their classmates, Caroline Butts. Caroline informed them that she was on vacation from Panama where she had spent the last five years as a government health supervisor. Caroline has not married, but she told them she was engaged to a rich plantation owner in Panama. They realized they didn't have much time before the movie began, so they wished Caroline and Phyllis the best of luck, and continued on their way.

The movie which was decided upon, was at the Brazilian Theater which was very modernistic, which just had been erected. After parking the car a few feet from the theater, they went to the box office to buy their tickets. They were greatly surprised to find the cashier to be Madonna Diegelin. Madonna told them she had taken the job as cashier in this chain of theaters and that her husband owned this new theater. They asked her about her school chum, Marjorie Redifer, who, Madonna said, was married to the owner of a large Standard Grocery Store Chain, Marjorie married in 1957.

When they went into the theater and sat down, they had no more than got settled, when Kay got a face full of water, for she had been shot with a squirt gun! Kay tapped the little boy's mother on the shoulder to tell her of the unorderly action of her son. When his mother turned around, Kay was surprised to see that it was Mary Helen Rogers. Mary Helen apologized for her son's behavior and suggested that they go to the lobby to talk. Mary Helen said that she was married to the manager of the local Bell Telephone Company. She met him when he accidently overheard one of her two hour conversations when he cut in over the wire while working on the telephone lines. She said that Alice Brown had married Wayne Muncie soon after graduation and that he was now manager of the local Public Service Company.

By the time they were through talking, the movie was over, and they said good-bye to Mary Helen.

Since the afternoon was warm, they decided to get a coke. As they walked back to find a booth, they heard someone call their names. They found that person to be Diane Ellmore. They sat down at her table and began talking with her about old times. Diane is married to the vice-president of the Murphy Company whom she met when he presented her with a special award for being one of the outstanding salesladies of their company. Diane said Bonnie Baysinger was now living in Indianapolis where her husband, Wayne Hutcheson, is employed at Allison's as assistant manager. She said that Bonnie had six children, three boys, and three girls.

There was not much time left before dinner, so Kay, Sue, and Catherine were once again on their way. Catherine discovered the car was almost out of gas. She pulled in at the nearest gas station, which also had a secondhand car and motorcycle lot on the side. Ralph Howald emerged from the station to fill the tank. He told them that he and Jim Ridgway owned the service station. He showed them a picture of his wife, who was very pretty. He said that she was a WAC whom he met while he was in the Navy and that they had two small daughters, aged two and three. They asked him about Larry Videll, and he said that Larry was a well-known artist, and was married to a rich southern belle from Little Rock, Arkansas.

While they were waiting for Ralph to clear the windows, Jim Ridgway another classmate, drove up in a new fire engine red Buick, with Hollywood mufflers. Jim recognized them and came over to talk. He also showed them a picture of his wife, a former Powers Model, who was very glamorous looking. Jim and his wife have four children, the eldest being in the third grade. They told Ralph and Jim good-bye and good luck and drove away.

They decided to drive through Forest Park to see if it had been improved in anyway. As they drove past the picnic grounds, they noticed two very familiar people. Catherine stopped the car, and they knew immediately that they were Anna Mae Garrison and Delores Baysinger. Delores told them that she and her husband own an insurance agency, and were well pleased with their work. Anna Mae said that she was kept very busy taking care of her two children, whom she had left with her parents for the day.

They told Anna Mae and Delores that they didn't have much time left, so they said good-bye, and promised to visit them in the near future.

While driving from the Park they decided to go bowling. They had heard of a new bowling alley just opened and decided to go there. As they were paying for their shoes, they were struck with the familiar face of the cashier, who was Patricia Kennedy. They asked Patty how long she had been working there, and she told them that she and her husband had bought the bowling alley three years ago. She told them she and her husband liked their work and that she had won the Women's Championship Bowling trophy.

It was so crowded that there was no vacant alley, so they decided to leave. They walked back to Patty's counter and told her they had to leave, but they would be back soon. They wished her luck in winning trophies.

Once again they were on their way. Sue had to be home early, because she had promised her children a bedtime story. When they reached Sue's mother's house, they saw a car in the driveway, with an M. D. license. Sue was alarmed and ran to the house. They found that it was all a false alarm. Sue's father, thought that her youngest child had swallowed some marbles. But Dr. Bill Lee assured them the child was all right. Bill said that he had a good practice, and that he had his office in Staunton, which was now quite a large city, with one of the largest and most modernistic school in Indiana.

Kay said that she would have to be leaving, for she had to fix the evening meal. Catherine and Kay told them all good-bye and wished Bill success in his practice and told Sue to visit them very soon.

On the way to Kay's, they discussed the day and all of its exciting happenings, and both agreed that they never dreamed things turning out so well for everyone in their class.

Basketball

The group of underclassmen on the basketball team did a very good job even though they didn't win all their ball games this season, they were full of pep and played their very best. The season started out kind of slow but as it went along the team made much progress. The great handicap of the team was the lack of height; the tallest boy, Bob Burns, being 5'9". David Barr, a lanky Sophomore of 6'1", started the season but broke the cartilage in his knee during the St. Bernice game and couldn't play the rest of the year. Since none of the players will be lost and all will be growing taller, "Whitey" is looking forward to a very good season next year.

The "B" team fared better than their bigger brothers, winning nine games while losing only five. From the opening game until the final one, the Freshmen were improving greatly and are going to help next year with their experience.

The 7th and 8th grade team had a good record of winning ten and losing only two. They played in the Y.M.C.A. Tournament and beat Rankin of Terre Haute and then lost to Otter Creek, which is a very good team. The school is proud of these boys as they will someday make up the varsity.

The Fan Gooster organization was active this year and did much for the teams and school. A bus was provided for the students to attend all away games and the boys were treated to a meal at all home games.

Baseball

The Staunton High School baseball team had a very successful season winning five while losing only two games, and finishing second in the Clay County Conference. Prospects for the coming season are very bright. Standout pitchers were Tom McCullough and John Evans. The outstanding hitters were Bob Burns, Harry Mayle and Max Shaffer. One of the outstanding games was winning over Ashboro 13 to 1.
